LOCAL JOTTINGS.

The Township Committee meets Monday afternoon.

An electric light company is being organized in Montclair.

J. H. Hardcastle returned last night from a very successful business trip in the West.

Lewis B. Eveland, Jr., only son of Lewis B. Eveland of Yonkers, a former resident of this town, died of pneumonia last Sunday. Interment was made in the Bloomfield Cemetery on Wednesday.

The adoption of a new form of township government is being discussed in Montclair.

Dr. Harry E. Richards spent the past week at Bothwell, Va.

The marriage is announced of James T. Dawes, a former well-known resident of this place, and Miss Jane Barnett of New York city.

A movement is on foot to petition the Town Committee to offer a premium to the owner of the first horse to arrive at any of the headquarters of the horse companies after the fire bell strikes an alarm.

A Christmas sale of useful and fancy articles is announced to take place Wednesday and Thursday afternoon and evening, December 7 and 8 at Christ Church Guild House. The proceeds will be applied to the new organ fund.

William Thompson, Secretary and Treasurer of the Barbour Linen Thread Company, and E. H. Davey, both of this place, attended the funeral services of the late Robert Barbour in Paterson, on Monday afternoon.

Navigation on the Morris Canal will close December 15. The last boat was loaded at Port Delaware on Monday.

The singing society of the German Theological Seminary will take part in the evening service of the German Presbyterian Church to-morrow.

The newly organized Men's Guild of Christ Episcopal Church announces a very popular musical and literary entertainment to be given in the Guild House Monday evening, December 19. This is the first entertainment gotten up by this society, but we may now expect to hear from them quite often.

Walter T. Davison, a clerk in the employ of W. S. Lockwood, the grocer, of Broad Street, has mysteriously disappeared from town and his whereabouts are at present unknown, but Mr. Lock wishes to see him very badly.

J. W. Q. Ackebush, the operator at the M. & E. R. R. depot, who has been very ill with pneumonia, is rapidly improving.

The Board of Governors of the Glen Ridge Club have ordered the club-house closed until further notice, owing to the serious illness of John M. Smith, the janitor.

F. N. Moffat of Fairview Place sailed to-day for Ireland, where he goes to take possession of a fortune which awaits him.

The New England supper in Temperance Hall on Wednesday and Thursday nights, under the auspices of the W. Massachusetts Woman's Christian Temperance Union, was a pleasant affair.

Bernard Higgins, the new foreman of Phoenix Hose Company, has made an inventory of all the property in Phoenix hose-house. A copy of it will be submitted to Chief Engineer Johnson and entered as general Fire Department property.

The Forest Athletic Club of Roselle will give an entertainment in Metz's Hall on Monday night. Two boys aged fourteen will give an exhibition in scientific sparring. They will use boxing gloves.

The regular monthly meeting of the Essex County Christian Endeavor Union of which the societies of this town are members, will be held at the Roseville Avenue Presbyterian Church, Newark, next Monday evening. Subject, "Temperance."

Clerk Beford was thrown from his wagon on Hillside Avenue yesterday morning. He was uninjured.

Watseassing Notes.

The Social Guild of the Watseassing M. E. Church met at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. John Greenbank on Westcott Street on Monday night.

The Rev. John W. Williams, the new rector of St. Paul's P. E. Church, preached to two large audiences last Sunday. The congregation are well pleased with their new rector.

The official board of the Watseassing M. E. Church met on Wednesday night to discuss the securing of a successor to the Rev. Elbert Clement.

Work on John Wiggin's new factory is being pushed rapidly.

It is expected that the religious services to be held at four to-morrow in Temperance Hall will be of great interest.

A pleasant and profitable time was had by the Watseassing W. C. T. U. on Wednesday and Thursday. The hall was beautifully decorated and reminded one of "fairy land" with its fancy articles, flowers, etc.

Boxing gloves were introduced into the Watseassing Field Club rooms on Wednesday night. Several entertaining sets were put up by the members by way of wetting the gloves. Claret was drawn in some instances. The gloves will always be in demand.

Parties have been inspecting the Grumman factory property at Watseassing with a view to using it for a cutlery factory. Nothing definite has been done in the matter yet.

The pink tea and fancy sale under the auspices of the Young People's Guild of St. Paul's P. E. Church, given at the residence of Mrs. Payson, 192 Prospect Street, on Thursday night, was a social and financial success. The attendance was very large. The parlors and drawing room were attractively decorated in pink. The ladies in attendance at the fancy and supper tables wore pink. The fancy table was in charge of Misses Kitty McKenna, Josephine Hogan, Clara Hampson and Annie Peterson.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Lawrence of Dodd Street celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Wednesday night. A large number of relatives and friends were present.

Shakespeare or Paris? Or Which Shall it be?

The decision as to which lecture Mr. Mangan is to deliver in the star course January 11th is to be left to a majority vote of the audience at Miss Russell's entertainment, December 14. The interest seems to be about equally divided between "Shakespeare and the Avon" and "Paris, the Magnificent." Both are very attractive and illustrated by about eighty superb views. The audience will be given a double coupon voting-ticket, bearing the titles of both lectures, and can then detach and give to the usher the one bearing the subject title they prefer. The majority vote to be announced from the platform December 14.

Vincent Meichler Dead.

Vincent Meichler, an old German resident of Bloomfield, died at his home, No. 18 Forest Avenue, last Saturday morning after a lingering illness, aged forty-three years. A wife and eight children survive him. Funeral services were held on Tuesday morning from the Church of the Sacred Heart. Bloomfield Division, Catholic Benevolent Legion, of which the deceased was a member, attended the services in a body.

Didn't Have Time to Use the Knife.

An Italian employed on the sewerage system drew a knife on one of the inspectors yesterday morning. He did not have time to use it, however, as the inspector grasped a brick and struck him on the head with it, cutting him in a terrible manner. The injured man when last seen was going through the street with the blood streaming from his wounds looking for a police justice.

The holiday edition of "Tales from Town Topics," which is No. 6 of the series, shows an increase in size and contains, in addition to the collection of stories, poems culled from the well-known journal itself, an original novella, seventy-five pages in length, entitled "The Sale of a Soul." The novella is by C. M. S. McLellan, and relates a story of metropolitan life in which a beautiful girl is raised from a Bowery saloon to the highest place in New York and London society. In its characters and local color "The Sale of a Soul" is highly entertaining, while the literary mélange gathered from Town Topics is of the usual bright and graceful description.—Town Topics, 21 West Twenty-third Street, New York.

What the Phonograph Heard.

One of our citizens has a phonograph, and the other evening he left it unfastened in a particularly susceptible condition, and the next time he took it out this is what he heard it say. At first he couldn't quite make it out, for it was such a jumble of ecstatic shrieks, exclamations of admiration, little twitters of delight, and chirps of happiness, that it sounded like the racket that a host of sparrows make, but when he remembered that the committee from the Paper Table of Westminster Church Fair had met in the room the night before, then he understood it all, and asked no questions. He has threatened that he will take that phonograph to the Fair, and let people listen to it for ten cents each, but the committee have taken that position in hand, and have bought him off:

"Aren't they the loveliest things!" "The Christmas cards are daintier than ever this year, and—" "I never saw such lovely children's books anywhere!" "What a splendid assortment, why it's like going into one of those big city stores, isn't it?" "Only there isn't that dreadful crowd, nor such confusion—" "Did you say you would order books that you don't have on hand?" "Oh, my—" "Did you ever—" "In all my life I never saw such perfect calendars!" "Prang has exceeded himself this year." "And Dutton's paper, at just what he charges himself for it?" "Oh, if here isn't just what I have wanted for years!" "What is it?" "All sorts of recipes for taking out stains, and arranged so that you can find what you want in a moment." "Isn't that nice, for I always forget just what takes that particular stain out, when I want to know, and—" "Green and white are the colors for our table." "Oh, isn't this book lovely?" "Oh, oh, oh!"

All this and more the phonograph rattled off, all jumbled up together, four or five sentences at once, in just the charming twitter with which a crowd of ladies can best express themselves. It would have been too bad to take the phonograph to the Fair, and let every one know what everyone said, but one of the committee suggested that they should take the phonograph to the Fair, and let it record what the delighted customers said when they found a full assortment of stationery, Christmas cards, booklets, gift books, children's books, photographs, and more other desirable things than can be mentioned here, at prices. If you watch for it Monday and Tuesday evenings you will see the phonograph at work, at the Westminster Fair, and when it has finished its work, there will be a grand composite of "A-h-h" in just the ecstatic tone, in which a small boy vents his delight when the curtain raises upon his Christmas tree.

Would Not Pay Their Fares.

An Italian employed on the sewerage system drew a knife on one of the inspectors yesterday morning. He did not have time to use it, however, as the inspector grasped a brick and struck him on the head with it, cutting him in a terrible manner. The injured man when last seen was going through the street with the blood streaming from his wounds looking for a police justice.

Patrick Riley and Charles King, drivers on the Crostown line, had an exciting adventure with four ruffians, supposed to have been Polanders, on Saturday night. The four men got on the car at Morris Neighborhood and refused to pay their fares. King demanded the money and the rascals answered him with insulting language. The drivers attempted to put them off, when the men turned on them with stones, etc. After a hard fight the drivers succeeded in beating their assailants off.
